Lawmakers Rally Behind General Program,
But Dissent Is Heard on Request for Power to Call National Guard

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, June 1.—Congress rallied unhesitatingly today behind President Roosevelt's call for another billion to fortify the ramparts of national defense, but there was sharp dissension in the ranks over his request for power to call out the national guard if needed.

From both parties came staunch support for the broadened preparedness plans.

The latest arms recommendations gave the nation a prospective military bill roughly three-fourths of the $6,148,795,000 spent for army and navy during America's first full fiscal year in the World war.

Although Mr. Roosevelt spoke in round terms of "more than a billion dollars", authoritative quarters said that the expenditures contemplated in yesterday's special message would come to $1,375,000,000. Added to regular and extraordinary measures now pending, this would make a total of $4,672,011,352.

While congress evinced readiness to vote the mounting millions, Mr. Roosevelt's accompanying national guard recommendation encountered prompt opposition.

Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich.) told reporters the request for power to call out the national guard if necessary to maintain neutrality was a "shocking" proposal which sounded as if the President wanted to be able to order a partial mobilization by executive authority alone.

Senators Wheeler (D-Mont), Nye (R-ND) and Bridges (R-NH), seconded this view.

Secretary Woodring sought to clarify the situation with a statement explaining that the war department had asked that the authority be sought but had no present intention of using it.

If it should later become necessary to call out the national guard, Woodring said, the initial purpose would be to give the men field training and seasoning such as is given the regular army.

Supporting the presidential request for national guard power, Senator Sheppard (D-Tex.) said he approved because "we must be prepared for any emergency". Chairman May (D-Ky.) of the house military committee announced that the necessary legislation would be introduced Monday and quickly passed along to the house for action.

Italians Preparing For Possible Blow Against Malta

When Italy joins Germany in her war against the Allies, as indications point that she will, it is expected that the first blow may be directed against the important British base at Malta, whose proximity to Sicily and the Italian mainland is shown in the map. One of Malta's big defense guns is shown, upper center, as it fired a practice round. The Italian military leaders who will be Premier Benito Mussolini's principal aides in the event of war are Marshal Pietro Badoglio, chief of staff of all armed forces; General Rodolfo Graziani, chief of staff of the army; Admiral Domenico Cavagnari, chief of staff of the navy, and Achille Starace, chief of staff of the Fascist militia.

trap in Flanders have been evacuated safely across the English channel to England, according to British sources, despite the almost constant bombardment of ships, ports and bases by German planes and artillery. This cablephoto shows the deck of a rescue vessel, jammed with British Tommies, as it arrived in a southeastern English port.

And on the "U. S. front," right—A strike of 6,700 C. I. O. union members at the Federal Shipbuilding and Dry Dock company plant in Kearny, N. J., halted construction work on $43,500,000 in United States warships and merchant vessels. A crowd of the strikers, who sought pay increases and a week's vacation with pay, is shown outside the plant gates for news of negotiations.

STRESS RELIEF

Sunday Is Set Aside For Contributions for War Sufferers

Sunday has been set aside by the Ministerial association for church people to give to relieve suffering in the war stricken countries of the world. Opportunity will be given at the several churches for those who have not already done so to contribute their bit to meet this tragic need.

Persons visiting the churches Sunday morning may leave a contribution there for the Red Cross to help make up the community's quota in the national appeal. Some of the churches are making a special appeal for funds for the same purpose to be expended through their mission boards.

CCC Quota for July
Not Yet Determined

LISBON, June 1. — H. A. Moore, Columbiana county CCC selecting agent, today announced applications are being received for the July Civilian Conservation Corps enrollment. Although the quota has not yet been established for the county at the next enrollment, it is expected approximately 60 youths will be accepted.

Moore announced that the 52 youths comprising the April enrollment, are now located in seven camps, as follows: four at Pritchard, Idaho; three at Lewistown, Montana; five at Superior, Montana; 11 at Darby, Montana; three at Vernal, Utah; four at Garrison, Utah, and 22 at Moapa, Nevada.

Girls' Drill Team
To Convene Monday

The Girls' drill team of the Welfare club of the Salem China Co., will practice Monday evening in the Memorial building, directed by Fred Shaffer, chairman, and Sarah and Ida Hanna.

The group will convene at 6:30 p. m.

The organization, now consisting of 21 members, will eventually be uniformed, Shaffer said today.

Italy's Strength and Weakness

Italy would add strength—and weakness—to the Nazi war machine if she joined Germany as a full-fledged war partner.

She would strengthen Germany where Germany is strongest—in men and war material—and weaken Germany where Germany is weakest—in economic resources.

The Italian Strong Points

ARMY—Premier Mussolini declared March 30, 1938, that he could muster 9,000,000 men between the ages of 18 and 55, of whom 5,000,000 would be first line combatants. Some, of course, would have to defend Italy's African empire—a logical objective for the Allies.

WARPLANES—Estimates vary, but conservative sources say Italy has about 6,000 warplanes of which 2,150 are of first line quality.

NAVY—Although Italy's navy is relatively small—717,920 tons as

STILL GROWING

Publication of findings in a two-year investigation of stagnant capital, directed by Dr. Harold G. Moulton of the Brookings Institution, furnishes a rebuttal to the argument that the United States has reached what New Dealers call "economic maturity."

Even in connection with the armament program, government spokesmen have begun to say the government should and will advance capital, which is the direction official policy had taken before the defense emergency. Though the Brookings report does not cover the armament phase of capital expansion, its conclusions may be generally applicable to expansion of production for national defense, too.

The United States, says the report, has sufficient potentialities to absorb its capital and labor resources for many years to come. Everything depends on establishment of stable conditions. The new capital needed by enterprise will be forthcoming when given reasonable assurance of profit. The national economy is not worn out. The Brookings report does not say so, but the implication is that New Dealers may be hampering recovery in their zeal to prove recovery is impossible without government intervention.

Three discouragements are charged to government: A tax system developed without thought of depressing effects upon capital markets, huge government deficits, and competition of government credit agencies. Red tape involved in complying with securities and exchange commission rules also is seen as a contributing factor. Significantly, none of these can be called a discovery; all have been discussed freely for years by those rejecting the New Deal doctrine that the United States has stopped its natural growth and henceforth must be spoon-fed by government out of the "planned economy" bottle.

The Brookings report confirms, with the authority of objective analysis, what critics of spoon feeding and other political impediments have been maintaining from the beginning.

SEPARATE PEACE

King Leopold's attempt to bring Belgium to a separate peace with Germany is a devastating, but certainly not a wholly unexpected blow to the Allied hopes.

As recently as last Sunday, Alfred Duff Cooper, British minister of information, broadcast a warning to the French people against a separate peace. Three days before, Prime Minister Churchill had renewed his government's pledge to conclude peace only in agreement with France.

Belgium was not mentioned then, but fear of a separate peace, which Germany has exploited, was active. Nazi propaganda has dinned into French ears incessantly the argument that France is fighting Britain's battle. Failure to attack Paris is supposed to convince Frenchmen that Germany's real objective is London.

In pledging themselves formally to make no separate peace with Germany, the Allies in the present war followed their procedure at the outbreak of the last war. First to break the pledge was Russia. Rumania followed. Less than three months after entering the war, most of Rumania was over-run. Like Belgium, it had nothing to lose by making peace, though a small Rumanian force held out with Russian protection for many months.

War is grim realism. There comes a time when nations must decide whether to go on fighting or to make the best terms possible as Germany did in 1918. The Allies are justifiably scornful of King Leopold for his second betrayal of their cause, the first being his decision to cancel the military entente with them in 1936. But they cannot deny that Belgium was beyond their help. Its plight is a symptom, not a cause, of their own desperate situation.

ABILITY TO RESIST

Allied will to resist presumably has not been affected by collapse of operations in Belgium. The disappointment, like the bloodshed, can be endured as part of the trials of war.

Plainly, however, Allied ability to resist has suffered greatly. The hoped-for squeeze on opposite sides of the German salient in northern France cannot materialize.

This was the only hope of halting Germany's offense. It was the only hope of averting a full dress attack on Great Britain. It was the only hope of keeping Germany from fighting its special kind of war.

There is no evidence that German losses in rolling back the enemy have been sufficient to take the sting out of its offensive power. They have been great, no doubt, but it was foreseen that they would be great. Adolf Hitler and his generals have set no upper limit on the blood they will spill and the wealth they will destroy to annihilate the enemy.

The sole chance of checking their belligerence now lies in an Allied will to resist so tough and unrelenting that the Nazi war machine will wear itself out in the struggle to overcome it. It continues to be true that the English channel is a more formidable obstacle than anything the German attack has encountered yet.

JACOB AND ESAU

America does not understand what national defense requires. Walter Lippman, who criticizes leadership for not waking up, is right. "In a state where military requirements are paramount," he explains, "the whole property and the whole work and the whole savings, and finally the lives of the citizens, are in principle dedicated to the national defense."

The transformation from a normal to a military state will not be accomplished here overnight even when, as and if the necessity is recognized. Back of German militarism lie generations of devotion to the idea of mastery and obedience, of force and militant heroism. Where Americans revered Lincoln, Germans revered Bismarck and Frederick the Great.

Can the United States put itself on a comparable war footing? Can Jacob become Esau? Can it prepare itself to oppose a totalitarian warrior nation and retain any of its devotion to the things worth saving? These are the challenges issued by the Nazi war machine to all nations which are not war machines. Great Britain and France are dealing with them now. Some day in the not distant future, the United States may be called up to give its answer. It is resolved not to be caught without adequate retreat.

This will not come about because the United States will make itself an imitation of Germany, thereby losing what is worth saving, but because there can be no security without force greater than Germany's. The tragic effect of the breakdown of collective security isn't the individual states that have been destroyed but the necessity for the surviving states to become warrior nations to survive.

THE STARS SAY:

For Sunday, June 2.

Sunday's horoscope is a most propitious one for all affairs of church and state, with those in authority and high standing in a very friendly mood and ready to lend support to meritorious propositions. There may be promotion, favors and signs of preferment. In connection with groups see that the objectives are worthy and the motives for universal benefit. Be wise with writings.

Those whose birthday it is are assured a year of advancement, fulfilled ambitions and the friendly support of those in prestige and influential place. There may be a disposition to further the interests of groups, but in this be sure that the purpose is worthy. A happy and prosperous year is presaged.

A child born on this day should be capable and ambitious, with the tendency to work in cooperation with those in power whose aim is for the public welfare. It should have a warm, generous and compassionate as well as friendly nature.

For Monday, June 3.

Monday's astrological forecast is for a particularly lively and enterprising day, with things stirring in happy and successful grooves, both in business and personal activities. There may be much industry and application, attracting the attention of superiors and employers, who will be generous in tokens of preferment and reward. Property values show stability.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a successful and pleasant year, in which old matters, faithful service as well as current endeavors may enjoy surprising recognition from superiors. These should give stability to the status and fortunes, and also old investments and values are due for increase and security. There might be an inheritance, or gift.

A child born on this day should be industrious, responsible, steadfast and prudent, standing well with its employers, superiors and in its social relations. It will probably enjoy substantial tokens of such esteem.

If You're Consistent Sit-Downer, Stay Put

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
My friend, Dr. Adrian Gibbs, tells me he said to his thirty thousandth patient the other day, "I am going to prescribe a somewhat peculiar form of treatment for you."

"I advise you to purchase a full length mirror. It should be one of those three-way affairs you find in clothing stores which are designed to make you see how you look with your clothes on. But I want you to use your mirror to see how you look with your clothes off. I have made you strip in order to examine you so I have an advantage over you. And I think that you should really know what you are like.

Dr. Clendenning will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

In the Mirror

"Because my diagnosis of you is that you have an entirely wrong conception of what kind of a person you are. You are a banker and you tell me that you spent practically all the years of your life between the ages of 20 and 40 sitting down. You enjoyed it and somehow you managed to accumulate quite a good deal of this world's goods. So with this addition to your family you decided, as the saying is, that you were going to enjoy yourself for a while. Somebody advised you to take up golf and you have been playing three times a week and twice on Sundays for the last five years.

"You were told that this would be good for your health, but you do not seem to connect the symptoms you now have with the change from a sitting position to a standing position.

"The reason I want you to look in the mirror is that I think you will immediately realize that you are a natural born sitting person.

Sitting Stomach

"Furthermore, your habits in other respects have changed since you took up the athletic life. You probably do not realize how adroitly I wormed out of you the kind of lunch you eat at the golf club on the days you regain your health. You eat a good club luncheon which is in quite a contrast to the one you ate when you were a practicing banker. Then you had a bowl of soup, or a glass of milk, perhaps a sandwich and an apple or other piece of fruit. You probably have not taken cognizance of the fact that your stomach is a sitting stomach also, made to fit your body. It is not prepared to take on a load of luxurious foods.

"You have surprised your stomach. You have played a practical joke on it, and nobody likes to have practical jokes played on them. I knew a fellow once in a filling station who was a born practical joker—but I guess we haven't got time to go into his story. The point is he was unpopular with everybody around the filling station, and you are unpopular with your stomach.

"Mr. Pillsbury, exercise has killed more people than I have, and that is a very comprehensive statement.

"You probably are not enjoying what I am saying but after you have honestly looked at yourself naked in a mirror, you come back and we will talk it over some more."

LUCILLE MARSH JOHNSON

SYNOPSIS

Wealthy Sam and Helen Snow object to their daughter Gabrielle's interest in handsome Peter Parsons because he has no social background. Gabrielle thinks their disapproval unfounded because her father started as a roustabout in the Oklahoma oil fields before he made his fortune in oil. She becomes angry when her mother reminds her of Uncle Gabrielle's will, which stipulates that if Gabrielle marries before she is 21, she is to receive his money until she is 35. With her Boston terrier, Ode, Gabrielle leaves to breakfast at the drug store where Peter works as an $18-a-week soda clerk. A talented pianist, Peter occasionally makes an extra $5 playing at a dance. Gabrielle assures Peter that she really cares for him. "Just having you and a piano is heaven for me," she tells her, and that afternoon Peter got his wish when he visited Gabrielle during his hours off. Mrs. Snow was at bridge. As he leaves his key, Gaby promises to meet him at 11 p. m. after he is through working. Later, Gaby's mother tells her that her father is giving them a trip to Europe. Gabrielle wonders why she isn't enthused when it is what she always wanted. That evening, she jumps at an invitation to a party at the home of her friend, Dorothy Mackey, for it will facilitate her meeting Peter. As eleven o'clock draws near, Gaby confides in Dot and asks her to make it a foursome. "I'll find Tony and see what he says," Dot replies.

CHAPTER FOUR

Dorothy went away laughing and Gabrielle went in search of Bob Eklorn, her escort.

She found him eating sandwiches and drinking beer in the dining room. He grinned at her, handed her a plate from the buffet, and asked with assumed gallantry: "Oh! My dear lady, and where have you been? Will you help yourself to these delicious viands, or shall I fill your plate for you?" She shook her pale yellow head, saying softly, "Not hungry, Bob. Please come out on the veranda—I have a confession to make!"

Bob Eklorn, tall, lanky, not very good looking, but extremely popular, silently set his plate on the table and turned to accompany her.

Out on the almost dark porch, Bob stood very close to her.

"What's on your mind, sugar?" he asked gruffly.

"Bob—" her voice was hesitant; she knew Bob thought a great deal of her; he had told her so many times—"I'm sorry, and I know I shouldn't have let you come and get me—" Again she stopped and gazed up at him helplessly.

"Sorry about what, sugar?" Bob asked softly, placing a hand on her encouragingly.

"Well, you see, Bob, I had a previous date for tonight—late, I should have told you of course," she said quickly staring up at him. "But Dot insisted I come over, and—I wanted to, Bob."

As usual, Gabrielle Snow kept friends in spite of what she did to them. Bob took a deep breath, then said gently:

"Let you off this time, sugar, if you'll give me a date Sunday."

Gabrielle considered. Well why not, she thought. No need to argue with him tonight, and besides, it was almost time for Peter. Better agree with him now and think up an excuse later. With Gabrielle, tomorrow was always another day.

"Okay, Bob," she said smiling up at him.

"Pardon me," said a voice that made Gabrielle jump, "but is this Miss Dorothy Mackey's home?"

"Peter!" exclaimed Gabrielle. She turned and quickly introduced Peter to Bob. They shook hands, murmuring something polite but the air was not so comfortably cool on the veranda as it had been only a moment before.

Bob excused himself and went inside.

Gabrielle turned to Peter with, "Oh, darling, I managed it!"

"Managed what?" inquired Peter, archly.

"To meet you, silly!"

"You managed to meet someone else first, I see!"

"Peter Parsons! Are you jealous?" His arms shot out instantly, pulling her to him.

"You know darned well I'm jealous!" he said, his lips against hers so hard they hurt her. "Did that fellow have his arms around you, Gaby? And—had he kissed you?"

"No, no, Peter! He only had his hand on my shoulder." She protested to tell him how she had gotten away to meet him.

"I had to explain to Bob, Peter," she finished. "After all, he did bring me here."

"Well, he won't bring you here or anywhere else from now on," vowed Peter gravely.

"How do you know?" laughed Gabrielle, teasingly. He did love her, the big darling!

"Because you're going to be engaged to me, or else I won't be seeing you any more," he replied quickly.

"Goodness, Peter! Is this a proposal?"

"I'm asking you to be mine, Gaby. Forever and ever!"

"Oh, Peter," Her voice was only a whisper.

Not many minutes later they were comfortably settled in the rumble seat of Tony's roadster. Gabrielle was glad it was a rumble seat because they had almost as much privacy as though they'd been alone.

Peter was murmuring into her ear, "I'll get with a really good orchestra, Gaby, and then we can be married!"

It sounded delightful to Gabrielle. Even better than going to Europe.

"Peter, in less than two weeks I'm going with mother to Europe."

"To Europe!" echoed Peter; then said, "Oh, Gaby, you can't do that! I couldn't let you go now."

"I'm afraid I'll have to, Peter," Gabrielle went on, thoroughly enjoying the trend of the conversation.

Peter's arm tightened around her and they rode along for almost a mile before he spoke.

"Gaby—" he hesitated — "I'd like to marry you tonight; but you know that, don't you? I only have $18 a week except when I get to play with Winter's orchestra. Well," he sighed, "we couldn't live on that I suppose."

Gabrielle hadn't been really serious when she'd said she'd have to go to Europe. She was, however, amused and interested with the idea of being married. Everything had been so dull in Tecumseh until Peter had arrived.

"You probably could get along on that, Peter," she said gayly. "I don't eat much and we wouldn't need a large place."

Peter held her close. Only a little past 20, he wasn't sure but what they might be able to get along on what he made himself. They would have each other and that would be everything!

"Wouldn't your folks raise Cain?" he inquired.

"More than likely," laughed Gabrielle. "They most generally do!"

"Gaby?" Peter's voice was eager, entreating. "Gaby, you do love me? You wouldn't mind being poor? I'll make lots of money some day — I know!"

With Peter's strong arms around her, his firmly molded red lips so close to hers, the dimple in his chin showing plainly in the moonlight, Gabrielle was thrilled.

"Say you love me enough, Gaby!" Peter urged breathlessly.

"Oh, I do, Peter!" cried Gabrielle, her low voice husky.

"Let's be married tonight, sweet heart," begged the boy impulsively. "Let's tell Tony and Dot now."

Gabrielle giggled. "It would be fun," she agreed.

"It will be more than that," announced Peter gravely. "I will be yours and you will be mine—forever and ever, Gaby."

They were interrupted abruptly by the sudden stopping of the car. Appearing at the side of the rumble seat, Tony inquired:

"Where do you two want to go? New Iris?"

"Meet the future Mrs. Parsons," said Peter proudly. "Would you like to be married in New Iris, Gaby?"

"Say—what is this?" cried Tony. "Hey, Dottie! These kids have gone wild with the moonlight, or something!"

Pardon me," said a voice. "but is this Miss Dorothy Mackey's home?"

"Moonlight and Gaby," sang Peter, improvising in his warm, sweet baritone.

"What is it?" asked Dorothy, coming around to the rear of the car suddenly. "Let's eat; I'm hungry."

"Meet the future Mrs. Parsons," repeated Peter.

"How do you do," said Dorothy flatly. "Now, how about New Iris and food?"

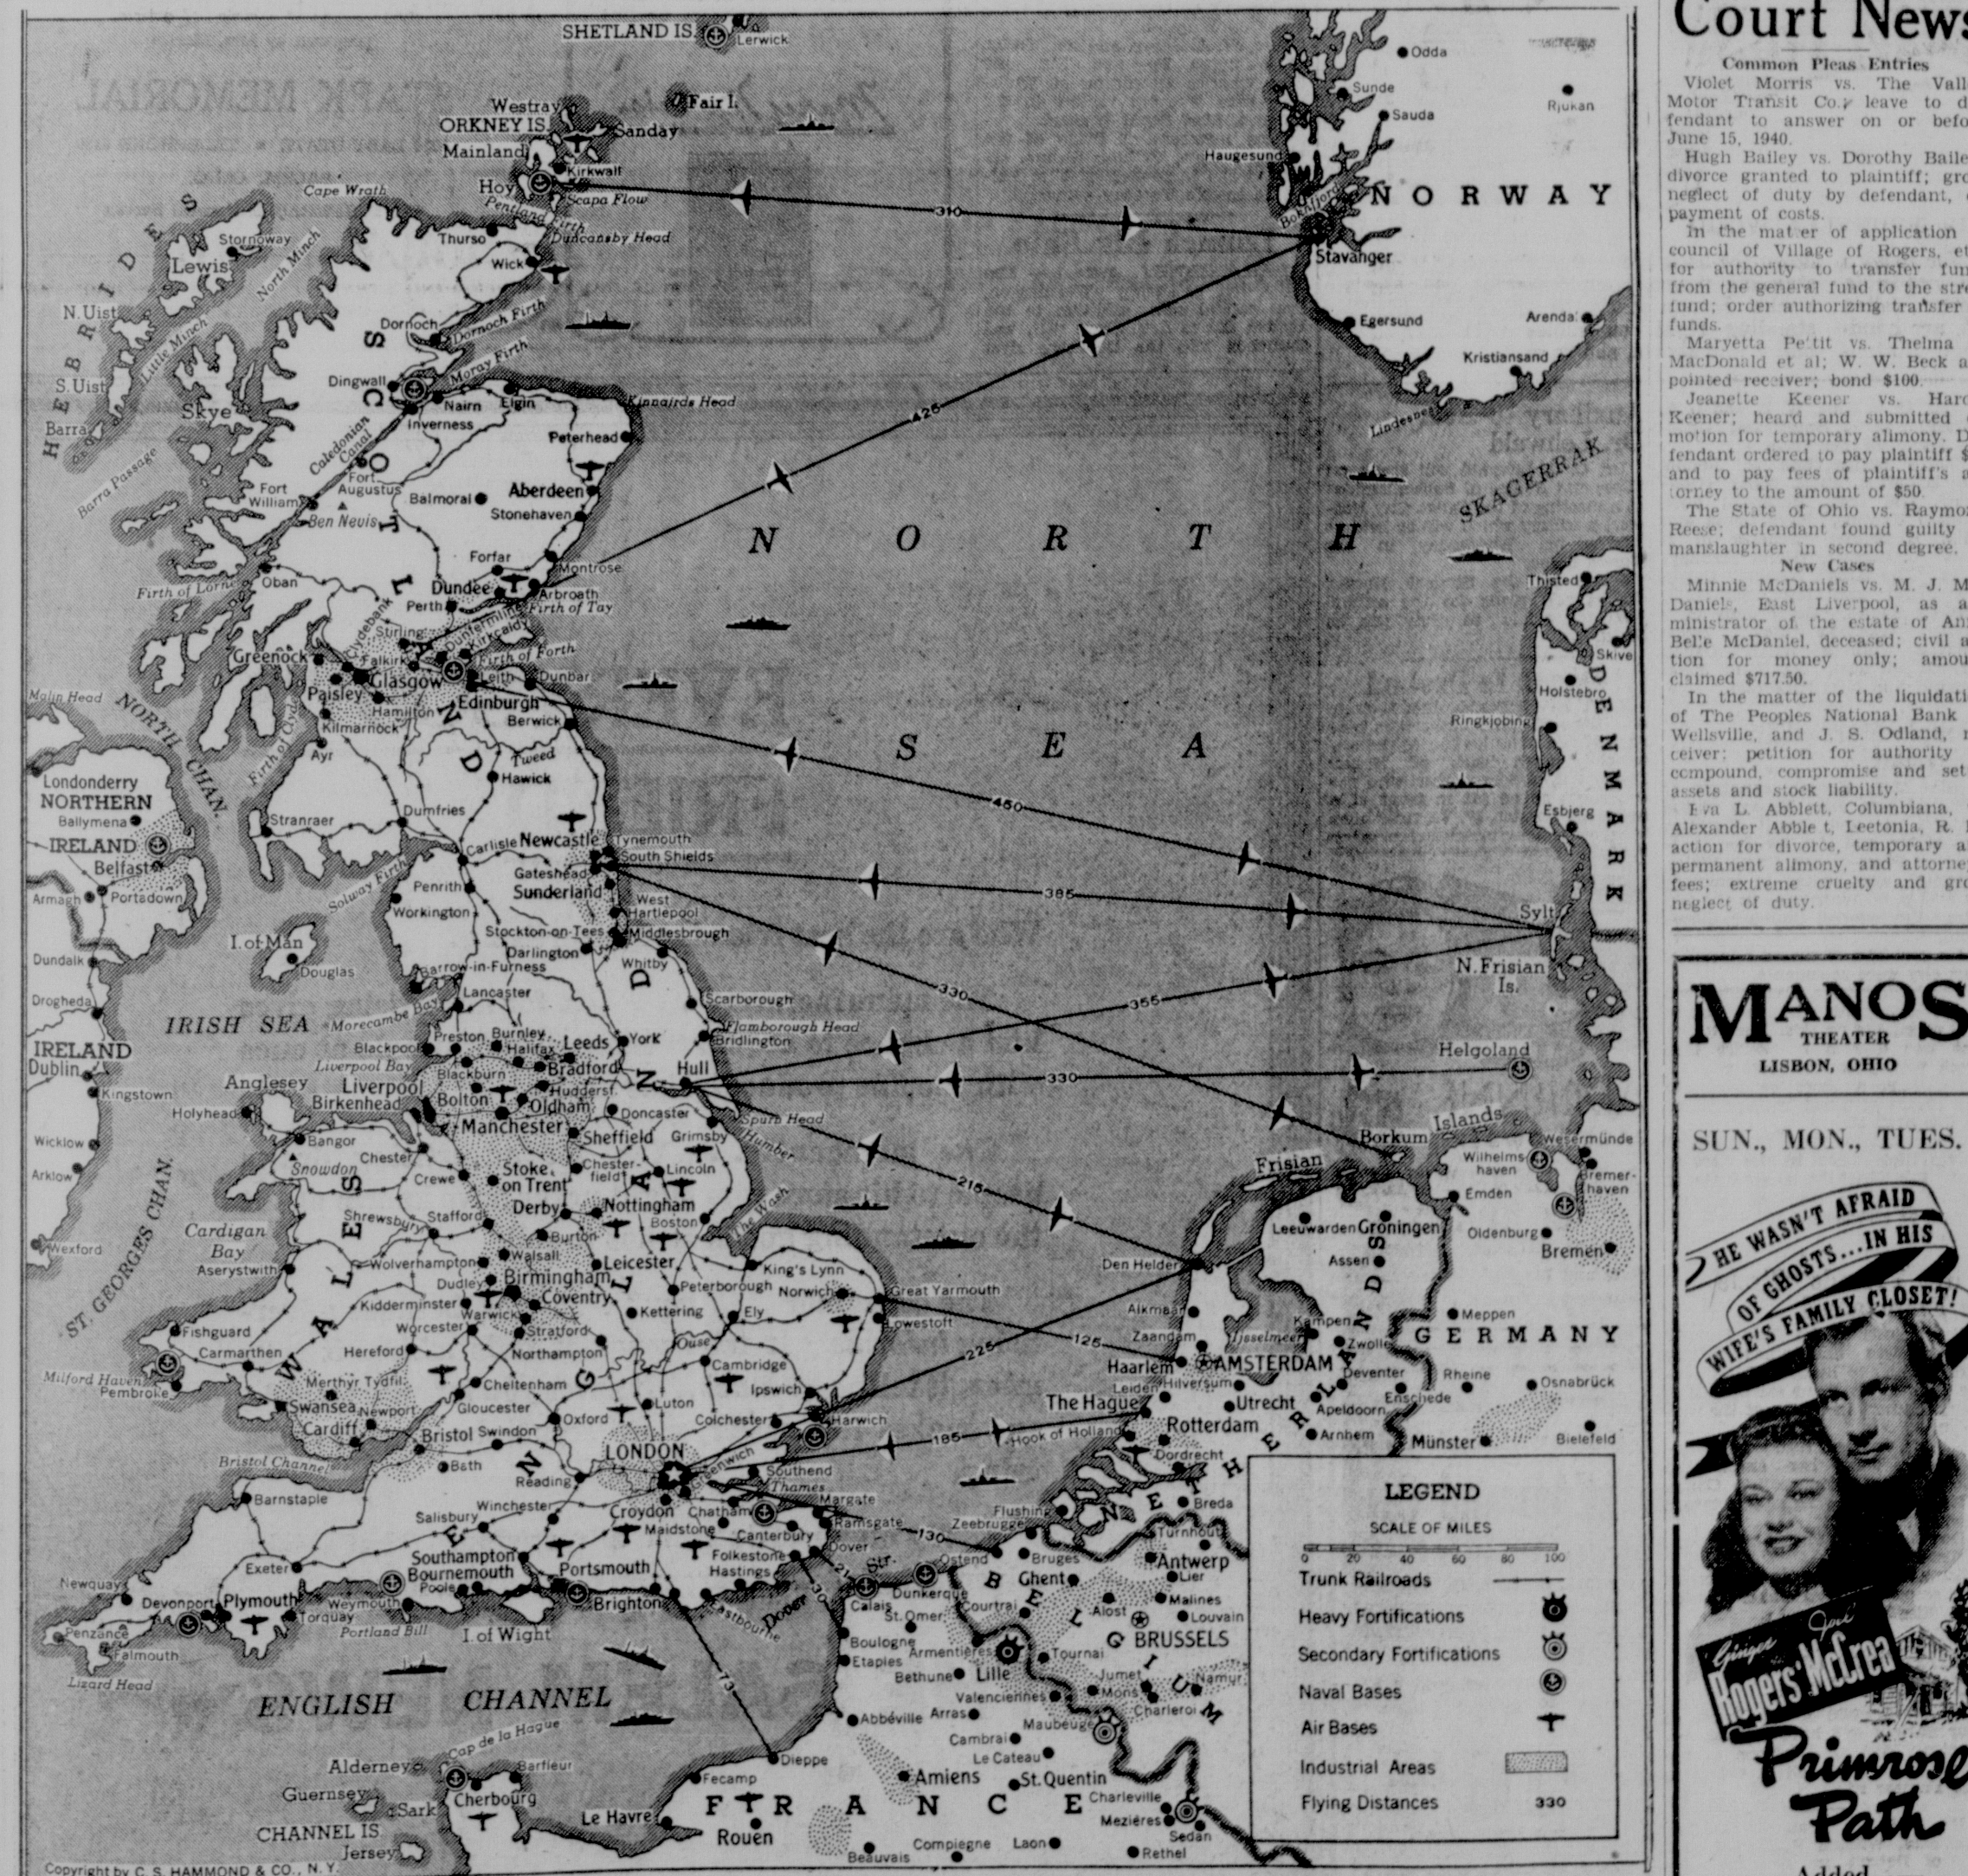

"But, we're being married tonight," giggled Gabrielle.

"So are Tony and I," replied Dorothy.

"Don't joke about it, Dottie," pleaded Tony. "I've just asked her for the thirty-third time," he explained.

Map Shows British Isles and Europe's Continental Coast Line

Here is another war map which shows in detail the British Isles and the continental coast line from northern France to southern Norway. It highlights the industrial areas, communication lines, air and naval bases of Great Britain. It also shows air-line distances between key military objectives of the Allies and German-held territory. Use it to follow war dispatches in The Salem News.

The annual Junior-Senior Prom, held last evening in the Masonic temple and high school gymnasium, attracted close to 300 students and faculty members.

A dance in the high school "gym" followed a 6:30 dinner in the Masonic temple, given by the Juniors for the graduating Seniors. George Baillie served as toastmaster at the dinner, with Melvin Wukotich giving the address of welcome in behalf of the Junior class. James Schaeffer responded for the Seniors.

The dinner program also included a monologue by Lucia Sharp; solo, Victoria Coscare; choric speaking by a group of Theopians, and a novelty number, "Abner's Juggernauts," featuring Robert Sell, Fred Kraus, Walter Karres, Perry Whitacre, Robert Zeck and Ellen Morris, all underclassmen.

The students, attired in formal dress, adjourned to the high school where, from 8:30 until 12, they danced to the music of Freddie Snyder's orchestra of Alliance.

Committee Members

The prom was arranged by an executive committee which included Miss Mary Roth, Junior class advisor, Melvin Wukotich, Gale Stewart, Florence England, Florence Hiltbrand, George Baillie and Joyce Malloy.

The committee which decorated the gymnasium for the dance comprised Herbert Brown, Karl Sander and Mrs. William Talbot of the faculty, Nansell Beardmore, Florence England, Irene White, Marjorie Harrell, Eleanor Ketch, Lucia Sharp, Elliott Hansell, George Stetzel, George Baillie, Robert Umberger, Carol Green, Ward Zeller, Leatrice Johns, Robert Ballantine, Rita Emery, Carl Smith, Robert Houlette, Cio Santee, Emma Dutko, Doris Laushlin.

The attendance and seating committee, with Mrs. George F. Koonitz representing the faculty, included Dorothy Green, Martha Clark, Emma Dutko, Jane Davidson, Hilda Fronius, Evelyn Koch, Mary Oehl, Eleanor Schults, Alice Ruth Vincent, Thomas Berger and Marvin Coffee.

The flower committee, assisted by Mrs. T. A. Mercer and Mrs. Louis Mulbach included Marjorie Brian, Margaret Hannay, Robert Ballantine, Alex Simion, Betty Percival, Gloria Gibson, Mary Santarelli, Alice Hunter, Ethel Mae Hill, Lora Hester, Vivian Foltz and Doris Brunner.

Miss Keister Bride of Paul Palmer

Miss Marguerite Keister, daughter of J. C. Keister of North Georgetown, a sister of E. G. D. Keister of this city, and Paul Palmer, of Hanoverton, son of Mrs. Mary Jane Palmer, were united in marriage at 10 a. m. today in Sebring.

Rev. C. H. Frank, pastor of the North Georgetown Lutheran church, performed the ceremony at the parsonage in Sebring. There were no attendants.

Following the marriage the couple attended a dinner at the home of his mother in Hanoverton. They will leave late this afternoon for a wedding trip to Virginia, the Smoky mountains in Tennessee, Asheville, N. C. and Washington, D. C.

The bride wore a dark blue crepe street frock with white accessories and a corsage of red roses and violets.

Mr. and Mrs. Palmer will make their home with her father.

A graduate of Goshen high school and Kent university, Mrs. Palmer has been a teacher for a number of years in the K-n-o-x township schools.

Mr. Palmer, former clerk of the Western Rural school district, is engaged in the insurance business.

Program Presented by Women's Class

Mrs. Ida Bedell was in charge of the program presented Wednesday afternoon in the Presbyterian church by the Women's Bible class.

Mrs. Luella Harris led the devotional service and Mrs. Harry Parks had charge of the music.

Reading were given by Mrs. Parks and Mrs. O. C. Juergens.

The meeting was followed by a social hour and lunch served by Mrs. Bedell and her committee.

The next meeting will be June 26 at the church.

Miss Emily Catlos of West Pershing st. is enjoying a few days stay in New York City.

Steam Has Shrunk Our Country

The power of steam, and the ribbons of steel rails which interlace the States, have brought most cities within overnight distance of where they may happen to be at the moment.

Funeral arrangements at a distance are no longer a problem. Whether the need has arisen at a distant point, or whether services are to be held in a remote town or city, there's a local funeral director who can handle every detail for you, with economy and dispatch.

Should such an emergency ever confront you, don't try to work out for yourself the hundred problems which will arise. An organization like the Stark Memorial is ready at any time to take complete charge, no matter what the conditions may be.

Rev. Keister Gives Second Sermon In Series On "Heaven"

Giving the second in a series of sermons on the general theme "Heaven," Rev. George D. Keister will preach on the subject "Shall We Know and Recognize People in Heaven?" at the morning worship service of Holy Trinity English Lutheran church tomorrow, the second Sunday after Trinity.

Complete services for the church are as follows:

9:45 a. m.—Sunday school; Charles W. Youtz, superintendent. (Ezekiel 15:1-6.)

"The conduct of people is a splendid criterion by which to test their philosophy of life. Most persons are anxious that the world shall be better because of their participation in it. They hope that their impression, even though very small, will be some contribution toward the higher goal for all living. It does not follow that useful lives can only come from the great and mighty.

The possibility may be greater, but the real contribution to better living may be proportionately small. Habits are formed every day by all people. Evil and good habits are possible choices. The way to make a test of our habits is from the basis of usefulness."

11 a. m.—Worship with sermon. Subject: "Shall We Know and Recognize People in Heaven?"

"Even though most all people believe in the life which is after death, yet there is wide difference in belief in the nature of this existence. Since a single person may seem to be such an infinitesimal part of the universe, it may seem quite logical that personality will be lost in the life beyond the grave. That may be a matter for much thought. When the mind or personality has gone from a person, the most important part has departed. God has sacredly protected the individual. This regard for individuality by our Creator will be carried on into eternity. Heaven will provide more than an existence for the redeemed. It will be life, and that presumes full knowledge."

Today's Pattern

CRISP DRESS OR SUN-STYLE
The sweet, fresh charm that spells c-h-i-l-d-h-o-o-d is all wrapped up in this Anne Adams style! Make Pattern 4472 in both its useful versions—those simple pannelled lines will be quick to stitch. The prettily shaped yoke and the sleeve tabs of the frock look adorable in dainty contrast, edged with lace. The sun-dress is made by omitting the sides of the bodice, the sleeves and the yoke and cutting the back into a low square. Crisp self or contrasting ruffling and a sash will give it a pinafare effect. The sun-dress may be worn as a jumper over blouses, too. Order this pattern today!

Pattern 4472 is available in children's sizes 2, 4, 6, 8 and 10. Size 6, dress, takes 1 1/2 yards 35 inch fabric and 1/4 yard contrast; sun-dress, 1 1/2 yards 35 inch fabric and 1/2 yard contrast.

Send fifteen cents (15c) in coins for this Anne Adams pattern. Write plainly size, name, address and style number.

Order the new Anne Adams Pattern Book by the next mail and be clothes-ready for summer! Within its pages you will find a complete wardrobe for either a traveling or an "at home" summer. There are town and country tailored, the latest sportswear, airy sheers and cottons, enchanting evening gowns. Fashions for every age are shown, from magically slimming matron frocks to spirited clothes for tots—and each in an easy-to-use pattern. Book fifteen cents. Pattern fifteen cents. Book and Pattern together, twenty-five cents.

Concluding Sermon In Series Planned At Lutheran Church

The concluding sermon in a series on the general theme "Life Forever?" will be delivered by Rev. John Bauman, pastor, at the divine worship service of the Emmanuel American Lutheran church, 291 S. Broadway, at 10 a. m. tomorrow.

The subject of the sermon is "Heavenly Activity of the Saved." The sermon text is written in the epistle to the Hebrews, 4:9-11 and Psalm 16:11.

The Sunday school meets at 9 a. m. and offers graded classes for the Christian education of the young. Lee Schaefer is superintendent.

"It Does Not Matter"

The human heart has many terrible powers. It has the power to hate. It has the power to crush another human heart. It has the power to blast the brightest and dearest hopes of life, but behind all these rises the shadow of one power even more fearful than these, a power which can finally kill hope, destroy love, and make life bitter, blinding tragedy. That is the power to say no to God.

How often that is done. Temptation comes, bright and smooth, and we say yes to it and no to the voice of God. Selfishness and ambition come, strong and power, and we say yes to them and no to the tender voice of Him who said "Blessed are the pure in heart."

But there is a more terrible way of saying no to God. It is the way through cold, stony indifference. This is the way which so many of our own generation have taken. It does not matter. Perhaps later, when the shadow of life lengthens and the hours grow late, they will pay some attention to the claims of Christ upon their souls. "Today if ye will hear His voice, harden not your hearts."

Announcements
Sunday school teachers and officers will meet in the church at 7:30 p. m. Monday. All teachers and officers are urged to be present. We need you to make arrangements for the Children's day.

Members of the church council will meet at 7:30 p. m. Wednesday. Matters of importance will come before this meeting and all members of the church council are asked to attend.

Choir rehearsal at 7:30 p. m. Thursday.

Christian Science Society Services

"Ancient and Modern Necromancy, alias Mesmerism and Hypnotism, Denounced" is the subject of the lesson-sermon which will be read at the morning worship of the Christian Science society tomorrow.

The Sunday service is also broadcast over station WCLE (610 kil.) in Cleveland the first and third Sundays in each month at 11 a. m.

Sunday school for pupils up to the age of 20 years is held at 9:30 a. m. A midweek service is held the first Wednesday in each month at the church at 8 p. m.

The Golden Text is: "Sing unto the Lord, praise ye the Lord: for He hath delivered the soul of the poor from the hand of evildoers." (Jeremiah 20:13.)

Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "Hear the word of the Lord, ye children of Israel: for the Lord hath a controversy with the inhabitants of the land, because there is no truth, nor mercy, nor knowledge of God in the land." (Hosea 4:1.)

The lesson-sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science

Placentia To Face Strong Tiltonsville, Pa., Team Sunday

WHEELING LOOP LEADER IS Foe FOR PLACENTIA

Lakers Hope for Break In Weather for Sunday Game

Providing the weatherman lends his support, Lake Placentia's semi-pro baseball team will face the strong Tiltonsville, Pa., Indians at 2:30 p. m. Sunday at the lake diamond.

The Lakers have been rained out of three of their five games to date, including a Memorial day double-header.

Either Willis Shopper or Carl Hannan will go to the mound as Placentia seeks to avenge a 10-1 defeat suffered last season at the hands of the Pennsylvania team.

The Tiltonsville club, boasting one of the leading teams in the tri-state area, currently leads the Wheeling, W. Va., Intelligencer league with four straight victories. The Indians met the Homestead Grays, battling the famed Negro team to a 6-6 tie before the game was called because of darkness.

Eight members of the Tiltonsville starting nine have had minor league experience or tryouts with organized league teams.

TYSON'S STOP WELFARE CLUB

Bulldogs Gain 11-2 Win Over Salem China Softball Team

Five-run scoring sprees in the fourth and sixth innings boosted the Tyson Bulldogs to an 11 to 2 victory over the Salem China Welfare Club in a softball game at Tolerton's field yesterday.

The Bulldogs collected 11 hits from Pitcher McCoy with Coughenour and J. Hanzlick leading the batting attack.

The Welfare Club batters hammered Pitcher Johnny Zines for 10 hits, but the best they could do was score one run in the second inning and one in the fifth.

The Bulldogs will face the Alliance Owls club at 2 p. m. Sunday at the Blackburn Hill field.

FILIPINOS VOTE ON BASIC LAW

One of Four Amendments Calls For Congress Of 2 Houses

MANILA—Proposed amendments to the five-year-old Philippine constitution will be submitted to the electorate in national plebiscite on June 18.

The amendments propose: (1) To remove the ban on presidential reelection, allowing one reelection; (2) to reestablish a bicameral law-making body to be called congress, abolishing the present unicameral national assembly; (3) to raise salaries of assemblymen from $2,500 a year to $3,600; and (4) to establish an electoral commission which shall have jurisdiction over elections.

The amendments have been approved by the national assembly, but approval by the electorate in direct vote is necessary. The proposed changes have been the object of many bitter attacks from the political opposition in the country, but the strongest attacks have been directed toward the plan to submit the amendments in one single ballot, which will contain only one question to be answered "yes" or "no" despite the fact there are four amendments. There has been widespread criticism of this proposed presentation of the amendments even among Nationalists.

No Choice Permitted Critics of the proposed single question—Do you vote for the approval of all the amendments? etc.—charge that it would be extremely unfair to the people, pointing out that individual electors may be in favor of certain amendments but opposed to others.

For instance, they pointed out, a voter in favor of a presidential reelection may be against raising the salaries of assemblymen but under the single-question method it would be impossible for him to accept or reject any one amendment. He must either accept or reject all the amendments.

SALEM NETTERS BREAK EVEN IN FINAL MATCHES

Quakers Lose to Lisbon, But Gain Win Over Struthers

Bringing a short but fairly successful season to a close, the Salem High school tennis team broke even in two matches this week.

The Quaker netters lost to Lisbon, 4 to 3, Tuesday but came back to shut out Struthers, 7 to 0, on Wednesday. Both matches were played at Centennial park.

Results of the two matches follow:

Lisbon 4, Salem 3
SINGLES—Hendricks (L) defeated Willman (S), 1-6, 7-5, 6-2; Wright (L) defeated Baillie (S), 6-3, 4-6, 6-2; Hannahan (L) defeated Ritchie (S), 6-2, 6-2; Capel (S) defeated White (L), 6-1, 4-6, 6-3; McDavit (L) defeated Stewart (S), 3-6, 6-4, 6-3.

DOUBLES—Willman-Baillie (S) defeated Southerland-Greenberg (L), 6-0, 6-1; Ritchie-Capel (S) defeated White-Sexton (L), 6-1, 7-9, 6-2.

Salem 7, Struthers 0

SINGLES—Willman (S) defeated Lutman (Str.) 3-6, 6-2, 6-3; Ritchie (S) defeated Kessler (Str.) 6-1, 8-6; Baillie (S) defeated Hill (Str.), 6-2, 4-6, 6-2; Capel (S) defeated Crea (Str.) 6-0, 6-4; Stewart (S) defeated Parker (Str.), 6-1, 6-1.

DOUBLES—Willman-Baillie (S) defeated Lutman-Kessler (Str.), 6-3, 1-6, 6-2; Ritchie-Capel (S) defeated Parker-Hill (Str.), 6-1, 6-2.

clock-like precision, impartial observers believe the amendments will be approved. The weak opposition started a campaign against the amendments, branding them as "not imperative" and of a "purely political" nature, but thus far has not attracted any substantial following.

The opposition's chief argument against the amendment to allow a presidential reelection is that it is based on "personal" motives.

Principal argument in favor of a presidential reelection is the expertly-coined phrase, "six years is too short for a good president."

Provides 24 Senators

The amendment reviving a bicameral lawmaking body—the Philippines had a senate and a house of representatives prior to the commonwealth period—would retain a lower house elected by districts and create a senate of 24 members elected at large. The defeated senate was elected by districts.

The amendment is predicted on the suggestion that a senate composed of men of more mature judgment could view the country's problems from a broad, national perspective. The merits of the United States bicameral system are cited in favor of this amendment.

British Round Up Aliens, Place Them In Camps

Part of the thousands of aliens in England who were rounded up in a drive against possible "fifth columnists" are shown in this photo as they march to an internment camp in northern England under the watchful eyes of a long file of British Tommies.

Red Knight's Kin

General von Richtofen

General Wolfram von Richtofen, above, cousin of the famous German World War ace, Baron Manfred von Richtofen, is co-commander of the German squadrons now raiding Dunkirk. Baron Richtofen—known romantically as the "Red Knight of Germany"—was killed late in the World War after downing more air antagonists than any other flyer.

AMERICANS FLEE FROM WAR ZONE

U. S. Liners Leave This Weekend from Galway and Genoa

GALWAY, IRELAND, June 1.—The first groups of more than 1,200 homeward-bound Americans today began boarding the U. S. Liner President Roosevelt, newly-arrived to take them out of the dangers of war.

Officials speeded embarkation so that the Roosevelt could start the return trip to the United States this afternoon.

Long before the American ship arrived at 10 o'clock last night (4 p. m. EST Friday), prospective passengers jammed this west coast Irish fishing port in response to consular appeals for Americans to leave the danger zone.

Americans in Italy also hastened preparations to sail for home from Genoa this week-end aboard the U. S. liners Manhattan and President Harrison. Officials tried to accommodate 2,000 passengers on the Manhattan, which ordinarily carries 800.

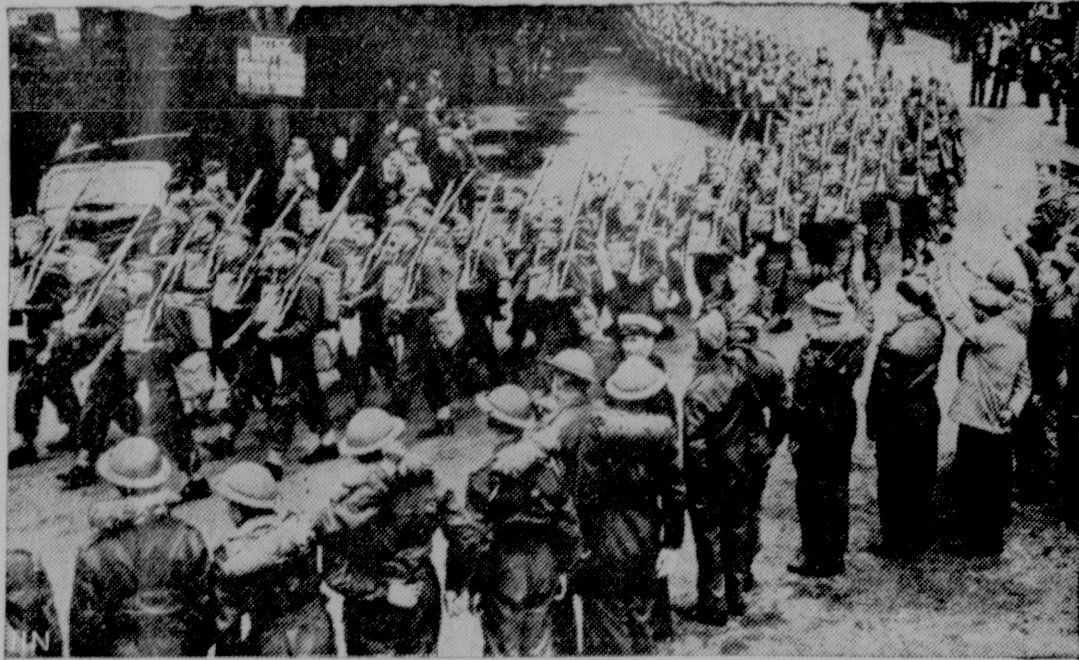

As special trains from Dublin swelled the crowds delighting townspeople who gave up their regular Friday half-holiday to hawk their wares to the visitors, it became apparent that the refugee ship sent at President Roosevelt's request would have to carry more passengers than anticipated.

The liner had extra berth accommodations ready and cots were placed in the public rooms.

More trains were due before sailing time, bringing film notables, wives of diplomats, business men, teachers and children by the scores. Informing that they could take only 20 pounds (about $64) out of England, many Americans spent their surplus on Galway's stocks of famed linens and lace.

compared with Britain's 2,079,863 just before the war—she has been building at top speed, especially submarines and motor-torpedobots, a new weapon which the Germans are using extensively in the English channel. She is believed to have more than 100 of these craft and upwards of 90 submarines.

These Are the Weaknesses
RESOURCES—Italy has been struggling to pile up reserves of oil and other vital commodities, but she has barely enough to meet her own needs in a long war. If Italy were a belligerent, furthermore, the Allied fleets would bottle up the entrances of the Mediterranean, her trade lifeline.

GEOGRAPHY—Italy is dependent on the Suez canal for communications with Eritrea, Ethiopia and Italian Somaliland, her East African empire, which, therefore, would be insecure. Although less seriously menaced, Libya, Italy's other African possession, lies between Egypt on one side and French and British territory on the other.

SALEM PASTORS STRESS RELIEF

Sunday Is Set Aside For Contributions for War Sufferers

The Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America has designated the day for giving through the churches. Some churches in the United States among them the Methodist are giving to aid their representatives in the war torn countries to relieve the suffering of their own.

The principal thing, the ministers point out in their appeal is to give for relief.

Waiting

WALLACE, N. C.—Josephus Daniels, U. S. ambassador to Mexico, in a telegram congratulating Director Norman Y. Chambliss of this community's annual strawberry festival, recalled that he earned his first money by picking berries.

He added: "The people I picked for still owe me 25 cents, and I'll give you the regular commission to collect it."
